

Initial Build Review with Jane

- Need to figure out how to make the site responsive, challenge will be fitting in GIF in smaller screens
- Maybe add dropdown menu for Life, Career, Legacy pages to anchor to different sections of the pages
- Maybe add carousel in Legacy to show all good pics
- Liked the theme, color scheme, photos chosen, font choices, and all aspects of the website so far

Mockup Review with Elle

- Now that I'm looking at the site, single page may be too long since the timeline is very long. Maybe switch to multiple pages, left/right arrows for previous/next pages, or cut down the timeline.
- Mockup B more closely resembles Savoy Hotel's logo, but the centered logo may not have space for the main nav bar. Can move logo to one corner or have it shrink/disappear after scrolling
- Double navigation for Mockup B might be a little confusing to establish hierarchy, maybe move main pages to the top and then keep nav within that page on the sidebar

- Font: sans-serif or more cursive-y both work as long as its legible
- Black and white website, except for some of the photos
- Layout: Navigation buttons across the top of the website for each section (Early Life, Entertainment Career, Humanitarian Work, etc.)
 - Or Life & Career page and then section headers within the page to divide the various sections (Early Life, Entertainment, Humanitarian, Personal Life)
 - Life (Early Life, Personal Life), Career (Entertainment, Humanitarian), Legacy

Designer: Elle

- Colors: muted, dark colors, cream; dark academia type vibes
- Vibes: dark academic, old money, quiet luxury
- Font: mix of sans serif and serif → create a sense of timelessness
- Timeline: pick important dates/events for chronological timeline only
- Fun Facts: interactive trivia-style with flip cards or something like that

- Artist-in-residence program: Monet
<https://www.strandlines.london/2019/09/09/the-savoy-monets-pied-a-terre/>
- Layout: one singular page with different sections with navigation bar leading to different sections. Can be changed to multiple pages if it doesn't look good/work out.
